Numa Pompilius becomes the second King of Rome. He organizes Roman workers into various collegia and attaches one to each legion of the army so that Roman arms and arts go hand in hand into the outlying parts of the Empire.

The stone workers, or masons, are the most numerous because of their use in defense works, and so become the most powerful. Each collegia has at least three members. They use their tools as symbols and look after the widows and orphans of members.

Numa was instructed in philosophy by Pythagoras

Quote of the month: The wages of a Mason are in the dealings with one another; sympathy begets sympathy, kindness begets kindness, helpfulness begets helpfulness, and these are the wages of a Mason. ~Benjamin Franklin

"Behold! how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity:
" It is like the precious ointment upon the head that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard that went down to the skirts of his garment:
"As the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore."
